

Share A Story Third Grade Winners

First Place Winner is Alyssa Minotti Best Friends

Once upon a time there was a dragon names Gravels. He was blue with white on his back. He was a friendly dragon. He would wake up every morning and he would fly in the sky. Then one day he saw another dragon that looked just like him. His name was Sunshine.

Gravels decided to come down from the sky to greet Sunshine and he replied hello back. They then became good friends and would go everywhere together. The two dragons would fly high in the sky all day long and search for fun things to do.

Soon, one afternoon, Gravels and Sunshine got into an argument. This had never happened before. Gravels wanted to fly into town to look for something to do but Sunshine wanted to stay in the forest and look for fun there. They both went their separate ways and did not speak for many days. Neither wanted to argue, but neither knew how to make up. So days turned into weeks and weeks turned into months and they hadn't seen each other or played.

One day while flying over town the two dragons almost flew right into each other! They stopped to talk and soon realized that their argument was very silly. Suddenly, they were friends again and never let anything come between them again.

Second Place Winner is William Edwards My Dream

One sunny day my big brother Fred and I went fishing. We walked to the creek with our fishing poles, tackle box, and a can of corn. We use a can of corn that I open with my brother's knife and put it on our fishing hooks. We put a bobber on the line and then cast our lines. My line hits the water and we get a bite.

Our lines were tight and hard to reel in. The fish pull us into the water. We went under water and we see the humungous fish has both of our hooks in his mouth. Then I wake up from my dream.

Third Place Winner is Taylor Bianco A New Friendship

In the month of May, there was a bunny named Cuddles. She was joyful, helpful, and had an amazing sense of humor. Cuddles lived on a farm on the East Coast of Virginia. One day, Cuddles was in her cage looking and feeling unhappy. There was only one bunny on the farm, only her. The other animals weren't comfortable with her yet because she was a newcomer, Cuddles was very upset.

An hour or two later, Stellaluna, the dog, came and said, "Hi there, I'm Stellaluna, Stella for short."

"Why are you talking to me, the others won't?" said Cuddles.

"Well, I'm talking to you because I think you might be a good friend. Do you want to be friends?" Stella asked.

"Sure, sounds like fun," cuddles replied.

"Want to start out our new friendship by going to the park?" "Ok, sure," Cuddles said.

The two played for hours on the swings, the slide, they even played hopscotch.

Then, somewhere around 8:30, they arrived home. "I really like spending time with you," said Stella.

"Me too, we are going to be friends forever," Cuddles said.

The next morning, Cuddles heard someone calling, "Cuddles, come out here!" It was Stella.

"I'm coming, Stella," said Cuddles, waiting to see what her friend wanted to say.

"Cuddles, I have some bad news. I need to go and get my rabies shot. I'll be back in a few days," said Stella with sadness in her voice.

Cuddles replied, "That's alright."

"I've talked to the other animals and me and those animals have become friends."

"While you're away, I'll play with other animals," Cuddles said, wishing that Stella didn't have to go.

"Ok, bye Cuddles, I'll miss you!" said Stella.

Then, before Cuddles could say another word, Farmer Mack pulled out of the driveway with Stella in a crate in the trunk.

Cuddles waited for almost a week and the, after all that waiting, Stella returned! Cuddles was so happy, she took her friend to the park every day all week. They were so happy that they were finally together again. Everyone was happy from there on out.

Honorable Mention is Anthony D' Arrigo Excuses

There are the ten excuses for not going my homework.

My dog ate my homework.

It was eaten by the Loch Ness Monster.

A dragon burned it.

I lost it in Alaska.

Somebody threw it in the trash.

My brother flushed it down the toilet.

My toilet came alive.

I wrote it on a computer, but there was a virus.

I was in a fight, but I got k.o.'d.

Do you think anyone will believe them???

